The Cleveland Museum of Art, which opened in June 1916, will celebrate its 75th Anniversary from June 1991 through September 1992.

These releases announce two exhibitions---Generous Donors: A Tribute to The Print Club of Cleveland and Directions in Drawing, 1750 to 1988---which focus on the history and high quality of the Museum's prints and drawings collection. They open on April 2, as a prelude to the anniversary, and remain on view through August 4, 1991.

In April, you will receive information about special events and major exhibitions to be launched in June, which--like these prints and drawings shows--are drawn from the Museum collection, and about special loan exhibitions which take as their points of departure particularly rich parts of the collection.
